INDIAN LODGES.

Homes of the Savages in the Days of the Buffalo.

While in buffalo days some of the wild Indians of the plains occupied permanent dwellings during a part of the year, there were others who lived wholly in movable lodges.

These were made of buffalo skins tanned white and sewed together. They were of different sizes, the poor occupying smaller lodges, while the wealthy man, he who owned many horses, very likely had a large family and required a larger lodge. The size of a man's lodge was to some extent an indication of his wealth. Two horses were needed to drag the poles of a large lodge and one to carry the lodge itself, three horses for the transportation of the dwelling alone, to say nothing of the other property and the different members of the family.

A lodge of moderate size required eleven skins, and eighteen poles were needed to set it up. A sixteen skin lodge required twenty-two poles. The larger the lodge the greater was the number of poles needed. From the fact that they used an unusual number of poles in setting up their lodges it resulted that the Cheyennes had well stretched, nice looking lodges.

The northern Cheyennes declare that an odd number of hides was always used for the best lodges, and the number might range from eleven to twenty-one. The skins were sewed together with sinew thread. First, of course, the hides must be tanned, the hair removed and the skin softened. Then the Cheyenne woman held a sewing bee which was not unlike the bees of our ancestors in the early days of this country. She invited her friends to come and help her sew her lodge and provided them with refreshments. Among them was always one woman especially skillful in cutting out the lodges, and she fitted the skins together before the women began to sew them.

Senator Redfield Proctor, who has been on a fishing trip to Mount Piseco, expects to leave Proctor this week for another outing in the same locality.

A. A. Farnsworth, a motorist on the Rutland street railway, was coupling a passenger and gravel car Monday, when he was caught between the bumpers and badly injured about the hips.

Nine Polanders employed by the John Jones State company at Castleton were hauled out when the Peter Durrage place was destroyed by fire at midnight Saturday. They were sheltered for the night by neighbors and supplied with clothing.

The Side Hill Slate company has been organized at Fair Haven by John O. Jones, Hugh Owens, David Morris, Jr., the Rev. J. R. Williams and J. J. Foley. The old Potter quarry in East Whitehall, N. Y., has been leased and operations were begun this week.

Capt. Charles A. Curtis, U. S. A., retired, commandant of the state university corps of cadets at Madison, Wis., who died Sunday of blood poisoning, was once a student at Norwich university, Northfield, and in 1870 commandant of that institution, becoming president in the late 70's and leaving there about twenty-five years ago. He was 72 years old.

OLD TIME CALENDARS.

The Saxons Clog, Whence Comes the Name "Almanac."

In these days, when printed calendars are in evidence everywhere, the question as to what device the elder folk employed to help them mark the progress of time is not uninteresting.

"They," says Verstegen, alluding to the Saxons, "used to engrave upon certain squared sticks about a foot in length, or shorter or longer, as they pleased, the courses of the moon of the whole year, whereby they could always certainly tell when the new moon, full moon and changes should happen, as also their festival days, and such a carved stick they called an almon-acht—that is to say, al-moon-wood, to wit, the record or observation of all the moons, and hence is derived the name almanac."

An instrument of this kind was also called the clog, from its form and matter, and had a ring on the upper end of it to hang on a nail somewhere about the house. On each of the four sides were three months, the days being represented by notches. Every seventh notch, being of a larger size, represented Sunday. Issuing from the right side of the notches were inscriptions and figures marking the festival days by some endowment of the saints or illustrating the season of the year by some work or sport characteristic of it.

Thus against June 29, St. Peter's day, were carved his keys. On Feb. 14 a true lover's knot appeared, and against the notch designating Christmas day was the old wassailing or carousal horn that the forefathers used to make merry with.

The Danes, Swedes and Norwegians used these almanacs under various names, such as Reinstocks, Runstocks, Runstuffs, Annals, Staves, Stakes, Clogs, Runnill, and so forth. Before printing was introduced and when manuscripts were rare and dear these Runic almanacs were made the instruments of instruction and regularity. That they might be more serviceable they were often carved on the tops of pilgrims' staves or stakes so as to regulate their time of assembling at particular places. They were also cut on sword scabbards and implements of husbandry. These clogs are not entirely unlike the Egyptian obelisks, which have been called fingers of the sun and which may be regarded as a species of almanac.

One of the first printed almanacs or calendars was that of John Muller, who opened a printing house and published his almanac at Gureburg in the year 1472. It gave not only the characters of each year and of the months, but foretold the eclipses for thirty years in advance.

In England the year book of Henry VII. gives the first recorded account of almanacs.—Chicago Record-Herald.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unhappily About It.

Many women weep and wall and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent trusses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies like through the thin thicket on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes to learn that Newcomb's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send me in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
